

The image shows a vertical grid structure with five distinct colored columns on the left side. From top to bottom, the columns are: orange, yellow, light green, light red, and purple. The grid consists of approximately 100 rows and 15 columns. Small green rectangular markers are placed at the end of several rows in the rightmost column. The grid is divided into five horizontal sections by thin grey lines, each corresponding to one of the colored columns.